MAAGS OFFER THREE PLANS ON BUS LINES

Third Proposal to Establish Service Here Submitted by Local Company

ROUTES ARE OUTLINED

City Council Expected to Award Franchise Before May 1

A choice of three plans with a schedule of fares including a 10-cent cash fare, three tickets for 25 cents, seven for 50 cents, 15 for $1 or a book of 50 for $3 and a five-cent half fare for children between six and 12 years of age with six tickets for 25 cents, is offered in the proposal for establishing city bus lines submitted to the ordinance committee of City Council by Maag Brothers of this city Saturday.

The proposal was the third submitted to city officials by bus companies last week, the City Rapid Transit Co. of Newark and C. F. Baldwin of the Local Yellow Cab Co. having filed earlier in the week.

Much less elaborate in detail than those submitted by the first two companies, the proposal of Maag Brothers provides a 10-minute service on Center and Davids-sts from Garfield Park to Oakland Heights, with a five-minute service during the peak hours. The routes and service are the same in the three plans submitted.

Type of Buses

The streetcar type of bus would be used. The equipment would be new and the buses would have a seating capacity of 21 with standing room for 20 more. The buses would be the same size as those provided in the proposal submitted by the Newark company but not as large as those provided for in the proposal of the Yellow Cab Co. which would use buses for 29 seating capacity with one bus on Center-st with a seating capacity of 33 and standing room for 30. The service in the proposal submitted by Maag Brothers would start at 5:30 o'clock in the morning and continue until 11:30 o'clock at night. Universal transfers would also be a part of the service.

Plan No. 1 would provide for a 10-minute service on Center and Davids-sts from Garfield park to Oakland Heights, 15-minute service on a route

URGE CITIZENS TO HEAR MAHON TALK AT CIVIC MEETING HERE TONIGHT

MEMBERS of the committee in charge of the meeting at the Marion Star Auditorium tonight have had a formidable task in arranging all the details, particularly the list of guests to be invited. Unavoidably and unintentionally a number of Marion citizens who should by all means be present are certain to have been overlooked.

The auditorium can accommodate comfortably only 500 dinner guests, but the committee urges all who are interested in the Forward Marion Movement to hear Stephen K. Mahon tonight, and get the fever of civic enthusiasm at one of the most important meetings that has ever been held in Marion.

If you are interested in Marion and its future, come to the Star Auditorium at 7:45 o'clock tonight, at which time Mr. Mahon will begin speaking.

George B. Scofield, Committee Chairman.

Five Hundred Citizens To Attend Banquet-Meeting of Marion Forward Move

Stephen K. Mahon of Toledo Will Give Address Here Tonight

BEGINS AT 6:30 P. M.

Kadgar Grotto Band Will Furnish Music; to Form Organization

STEPHEN K. MAHON

Five hundred of Marion's representative citizens will gather about the banquet table, hear an inspirational address and make plans tonight for the permanent Marion Forward Movement.

The committee of which Judge George B. Scofield is chairman said today that it was expected that everyone of the 500 seats arranged for tonight's banquet in the Star Auditorium will be filled when the affair comes to order promptly at 6:30 o'clock.

The meeting tonight is the second step in the organization of a Marion Forward Movement. Stephen K. Mahon, of Toledo and well known here as a speaker, will give the principal address.

The 500 persons atending tonight's banquet-meeting are to be guests, a large number of Marion business men having contributed to pay for the dinner-session. All of the guests are connected with civic and service organizations or primarily interested in the city's future.

It is expected, too, that the permanent executive board of the Marion Forward Movement will be named. The committee named at the first meeting will make the nominations.

Kadgar Grotto Band will provide music for tonight's meeting, while women members of the United Brethren Church will serve the banquet.

OH, THIS IS AWFUL!

Cicero Safest Place in Illinois in Which To Live

CHICAGO, March 26—Horrors! And other exclamations of surprise—what have we here?

Cicero—the reeking back yard of bold bad Chicago, the suburban rendezvous of Chicago gangsters and the notorious headquarters of "Scarface Al" Capone—is the safest place in the state in which to live.

Thus declares a report on mortality statistics issued by the Illinois Department of Health. The town of Cicero, despite its gang wars and killings, has the lowest death rate per 1,000 population of any place in the state, according to the report.

SHARPLESS TO BE TRIED ON NINE COUNTS

Grand Theater Manager Again Arrested on Sunday Movies Charge

Arrested yesterday afternoon and again last night on charges of operating a moving picture show on Sunday, Edward F. Sharpless, manager of the Grand Theater, will face nine counts, when his case comes up for hearing at a special session of the grand jury Wednesday.

Sharpless was arrested yesterday afternoon shortly after the opening of the first show and again shortly after opening at night. He was released on his own recognizance in both cases, for his appearance in court this morning. He waived examination when arraigned before Municipal Judge William R. Martin this mornig and was held to the grand jury under $300 bond on each count.

Waives Examination

His arrest last night represents the ninth time Sharpless has been brought into Municipal Court on the charge of operating a moving picture show on Sunday. In each case he waived examination and was held to the grand jury.

The question of whether Marion is or is not to have Sunday picture shows will be answered when the grand jury meets Wednesday. Those who do not favor the shows, are pinning their faith to the law which provides that 12 out of the 15 jurors can return an indictment, while those who favor the shows are congratulating themselves that even though, Sharpless is indicted it will require the unanimous vote of the petit jury to bring about a conviction. This, they say, will be difficult to bring about, as it will be no easy matter to place 12 persons on the petit jury who are opposed to Sunday shows.

PEACE SLOGAN BEING FAVORED BY FRANCE

Press Backs Talk; May Take Great Strides in Preventing War

Paris, March 26—"Peace and disarmament" is the slogan of France today both at home and abroad.

Newspapers supporting the "National Union" government now in power, were warm in praise of Premier Poincare's peace speech at Bordeaux opening the national political campaign. The premier stressed the need for peace to enable France to continue the work of reconstruction.

Meanwhile Foreign Minister Briand is continuing the task of completing France's reply to Secretary of State Kellogg's latest note in support of a multilateral treaty to outlaw war. It is hinted in some quarters that France may go further in the forthcoming note than she has ever gone before in pledging herself against future warfare.

Panama, March 26—U. S. Assistant Secretary of War F. Trubee Davison and Maj. Gen. J. E. Fechet, chief of the U. S. Army Air Service, who flew here from the United States announced today they would fly back home using the West Indian route followed by Colonel Lindbergh. They probably will report upon the feasibility of a Caribbean air route such as proposed by Colonel Lindbergh.

T. E. ANDREWS QUITS AS HEAD OF XENIA HOME

Former Marion Mayor to Be Placed in Charge of Miner Relief Work

EFFECTIVE AT ONCE

No Explanation Made of Colonel's Resignation; State Officials Silent

Simultaneous with the announcement that Lieut. Col. T. E. Andrews, former mayor of Marion, had resigned as superintendent of the Ohio Soldiers & Sailors Orphans' Home at Xenia it was stated by Adj. Gen. Frank Henderson in Columbus that he intended placing Andrews in charge of relief work being conducted among destitute miners' children in the Hocking Valley region.

Colonel Andrews, it was stated at the adjutant general's office, will replace Col. John Shetler, Columbus, who formerly had charge of the relief work in the Hocking Valley, with headquarters at Nelsonville, but who has been designated as supervisor of the relief work which the Ohio National Guard now is conducting both in Belmont County and in the Hocking Valley.

No Reason Assigned

The adjutant general said that he did not know why Andrews resigned. The resignation, it was stated, becomes effective at once. Mrs. Adda G. Bailey, Wapakoneta, a member of the Xenia Institution's board of trustees, will have charge of the home temporarily, it was announced.

Andrew's resignation, however, follows the publication of a report coming from a committee of experts hired by a joint legislative committee recommending that the home be closed.

Officials Silent

State officials at Columbus today refused to comment for publication relative to the recommendation that the institution close its doors.

Closing of the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans Home at Xenia, an institution which is under the management of T. E. Andrews, former Marion mayor, is recommended in a report coming from a committee of experts employed by a joint legislative committee to investigate alleged unsatisfactory conditions at the home.

The report was made public in Cleveland last night by State Senator Joseph N. Ackerman of that city, chairman of the committee.

Andrews has been superintendent of the home for several years and his wife has served as matron during the same period.

The report on the institution at Xenia, a state supported home, ties in with several previous investigations which have found unfortunate conditions there.

List of Findings

Here are a few of the findings:

CROSS COUNTRY BUS SERVICE IS PLANNED

Gigantic Merger Involves 232 Transportation Companies; Trip Takes Six Days, Nights

New York, March 26—Transcontinental bus service, New York to Los Angeles, will be started soon if plans now under way go through without a hitch. A gigantic merger, involving 232 bus companies from coast to coast, will make the service possible. The trip will require six days and six nights and the cost will be $56.50, half of the present railroad fare.

The system, operated under the National Motor Bus Association, Chicago, will connect the independent lines now in operation, and will include equipment valued at more than $150,000,000, not including states franchises.

Traffic in the east will be handled by the Cardinal Stages, which operates between New York and Philadelphia. Other large companies are the Interstate Motor Bus Line, Western Motorway, Pacific Coast Lines and Southern Transportation Lines.

Final papers making effective this first transcontinental bus merger were reported to have been signed at a conference in the Hotel Commodore, this city, on Saturday. Details as to how the cross country traffic will be handled are now being worked out, according to Martin Rubin, New York legal representative of the company.

When details are completed two buses will leave New York City every day for Los Angeles. Later there will be two through buses, equipped with sleeping accomodations, dining car service and all the conveniences found on trains, Rubin said.

TELLS DEMOCRATS TO WRITE FARM PLANK

New Yorker Cites Conditions Necessary for Return of Prosperity

Washington, March 26—The condition of the farmer today in endangering the prosperity of the nation, B. F. Yoakam of New York told the Woman's National Democratic Club here today in a speech urging the Democratic party to write a strong agricultural plank into its platform for the coming presidential election.

The only way farming can be restored to a prosperous condition, he said, is by Congress enacting a law "permitting farmers to manage and control their own business through boards of marketing control, empowering them to establish a systematized nationwide marketing system, each standard commodity to be marketed under its own federal charter."

Farm values have decreased in seven years from $70,000,000,000 to $56,000,000,000, Yoakam declared, while other property values have increased from $550,000,000,000 to more than $600,000,000,000.

Evidence of increasing industrial activity in Marion developed today when operations at the plant of the Osgood Co. went to a full-time schedule of 55 hours a week. This means five and a half 10-hour days for the company's force of employes.

The schedule, it was stated at the company's office, has been gradually increased during the last few weeks.

The Commercial Steel Castings Co., the General Excavator Co. and the Alloy Cast Steel Co., all concerns closely allied with the Osgood Co., are also working full time, it was announced.

In addition, a partial force is being employed nights at the Commercial Steel Casting Co. plant.

Business of all four companies were reported to be exceptionally favorable.

RENO ENDANGERED

Residents of Nevada City Fear Huge Dam Will Let Go

Reno, Nev., March 26—Churning waters backing up the giant Boca Dam, 24 miles north of here, loomed as the outstanding menace confronting Reno today as the waters of Truckee River began to recede to their normal banks, following a rise in the river that inundated an adjacent thoroughfare with three feet of water.

The waters, said to stretch for one mile and a half in back of the dam, were swelled to tremendous volume by the prolonged rain storm which has prevailed over northern California and northwestern Nevada for the past five days added to the melting of snow in the mountainous heights of the Sierra range.

NOT "ANTI-UNION," IS CLAIM OF MINES

Head of Rockefeller Coal Interests Appears Before Senate Committee

Washington, March 26—The Rockefeller coal companies are not anti-union, George Anderson, executive vice president of the Consolidation Coal Co., told the Senate coal committee today.

A dominating interest in the concern is held by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who, at his appearance before the committee last week requested that Anderson be permitted to present the company's side of the controversy with the United Mine workers.

The union has charged that when the Consolidation company allegedly broke its wage contract in 1924, it forced other West Virginia operators to follow the example.

Anderson echoed Rockefeller's testimony in saying the company did not abrogate its contract but terminated the agreement by mutual consent of both sides.

He cited figures to show that the company today is employing more men and producing more coal than under union operations.

CONGRESSMAN DAVEY MAY TALK IN MARION

Democratic Candidate for Governor Probably Will Speak Here Twice

Congressman Martin L. Davey of Kent, who recently announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for governor, will probably deliver two or more speeches in Marion should plans for his visit here be completed in accordance with arrangements now under way.

This was indicated today by S. H. DeLong, member of the Democratic county organization who is in charge of preliminary plans for the congressman's visit. The tentative program is to have him speak at the Kiwanis Club meeting at noon, give an address at a meeting of Marion County Democrats at night and talk to a school gathering either morning or afternoon.

No Date Fixed

No date for Davey's coming to Marion has been fixed but it will probably be within the next few weeks, DeLong stated.

The congressman's address at the Democratic meeting is to be on political issues. His other talks, it is stated, would be strictly non-partisan. Davey is recognized as one of the country's leading experts in forestry and his proposed talk before the school children would be chiefly on that subject.

The same subject and probably government and legislative questions are usually discussed in his speeches before luncheon clubs. He was the speaker at a meeting of the Rotary Club here some time ago.

Sentimental Bandits Return Highly-Prized Watch of Victim After Taking Pocketbook and Gasoline

TWO youths qualified as bold, bad bandits by staging a hold-up near Caledonia, Saturday, and then showed evidence of sentiment and honesty by returning part of their loot in response to pleas from their victim.

The hold-up, the fourth of a series of robberies in Caledonia and vicinity within less than a occurred at the filling station operated by E. J. Bunn on the Harding Highway; three miles east of the village.

The young bandits may be the same pair who held up Henry Nufer at his filling station in Caledonia last Wednesday night, the village marshal, J. C. Shartock, said today. They escaped with $40 taken from Nufer's cash register and eight gallons of gas which he had supplied for their automobile.

Stove Tank Filled

Similar tactics were used by the two youths, each about 22 years of age, who held up Bunn.

They drove up to Bunn's filling station shortly after 9 o'clock Saturday morning in a Buick coupe and had their tank filled with 16 gallons of gasoline.

When Bunn turned to the pair after filling their order for gas he found himself facing a formidable looking revolver. He was ordered to "come across" with his money and other valuables. Bunn handed over his watch and a pocketbook containing $5 in change.

The watch and pocketbook, Bunn informed his visitors, were keepsakes and he pleaded for their return. The young bandits hesitated momentarily but finally handed back both articles after Bunn told them that the watch was a gift from his father.

"He is dead and this is the only keepsake I have from him," Bunn related in his plea.

Hand Returned Calmonia

The two youths drove off headed toward Caledonia. Bunn was unable to notify authorities by some

Coolidge's Influence With Congress Likely to be Put To Test Within Next Month

Ultimate Fate of Flood Control, Farm Relief, Merchant Marine and Tax Legislation Placed in Doubt; President May Resort to His Veto Power

Washington, March 26— President Coolidge's influence with a Congress that is already preparing for a new occupant of the White House will be put to the test in the next month under a legislative program announced today by congressional leaders.

With factors in both parties in revolt over administration proposals, the ultimate fate of flood control, farm relief, merchant marine and tax legislation was placed in doubt.

There were indications that Mr. Coolidge might resort to his veto power to enforce the administration demands upon a recalcitrant Republican majority on some measures. Hints of such action have been freely voiced by callers at the executive offices. Flood relief for the Mississippi Valley was in the vanguard of Senate business this week, four months after Congress first convened and a year later than the disastrous flood that claimed scores of lives and $250,000,00 0 worth of property.

Reject Coolidge Demand

Both Senate and House committees have rejected the president's insistent demand that provision be made in any flood control bill for local contributions. This feature of the Jones flood control bill is expected to develop one of the bitterest legislative fights of the session in both houses.

Before the Senate has finished with flood relief, the House is expected to be in the midst of another squabble over the McNary-Haugen bill. Mr. Coolidge has already indicated that he would veto the new measure, although farm bloc leaders claimed that nine of his 10 objections to last year's bill have been met.

A bill providing for indirect merchant marine subsidies is slated to be reported by the House merchant marine committee, with approval of the administration. The Senate, however, is on record as favoring government ownership and operation of the merchant marine. Tax reduction will come to the fore when a new estimate of the Treasury's condition is made by Secretary Mellon. A Democratic-Progressive coalition in both Senate and House threatens to run counter to the administration will on this measure.

Probes Scheduled

The Senate program for the week includes oil and coal investigations, the contempt trial of Thomas W. Cunningham of Philadelphia, consideration of the migratory bird bill, flood control and farm relief.

The $59,000,000 naval supply bill, postponement of the national origins provision of the immigration law for one year, and rivers and harbors matters were on the House calendar. The McNary-Haugen bill also is expected to be put on the calendar.

The House had planned to take up the attempt to unseat Rep. James M. Beck, Republican, of Pennsylvania, elected to the seat formerly held by Senator-elect William S. Vare, but absence of the Michigan delegation to attend the funeral of the late Senator Ferris, caused postponement of the fight.

DOCTORS SHOW HOW TO END BRONCHIAL COUGH

Worry Relieved When She Tries Hospital Tested Method in Her Own Home

No longer is it necessary to use needless guesswork in choosing the quickest and surest way to get rid of a deep seated cold, or even a cough caused by bronchitis. For a unique method now recommended by physicians has brought quick and lasting relief to numbers of Marion people who have used it in their homes.

Mrs. R. H. Gibbons, for instance, was treated for a severe cold complicated with bronchitis. Cough syrups had given her only temporary relief and she became so ill she was forced to quit work. Then, on the advice of her doctor she started taking double doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral—a concentrated mixture of wild cherry, white pine, glycerine, terpin hydrate and other ingredients which have relieved even the most extreme hospital cases.

Relief began with the first pleasant swallow. She felt its comforting, healing warmth as it penetrated through and through the irritated linings of her throat, chest and bronchial tubes. That night she slept for te first time in nearly a week without being awakened by coughing spells. In a day or so all traces of the cold had clearedd up and in less than ten days, the doctor reports, she was rid of her bronchial trouble.

Note: See other cases reported daily—all certified to this paper by the attending physician.

Doctors find that this hospital medicine does far more than stop coughing instantly. It penetrates and heals inflamed linings of the breathing passages. Absorbed by the system it quickly reduces phlegm, helps allay that "feverish" grippy feeling and drives out the cold from the nose passages, throat and chest.

Just a few pleasant spoonfuls of Cherry Pectoral now and you'll feel like a different person tomorrow. At all druggists, 60c; twice as much in $1.00 hospital size.

Indoor job no handicap; anyone can keep fit

Ambitious clerk finds way to beat the game

"EASY", HE SAYS

"I WORK in an office. That means that I've got a raft of details on my mind. And I've got to be right up to scratch every moment. You know how hard-boiled the chief can be if I can't dig up the right data at just the right moment. Hard work—long hours—a good deal on my feet.

"And yet I manage to be full of pep. What's more, I've got a real interest in my job—looking ahead, you know, to a little niche at the top for yours truly. I've just got to keep fit.

"How do I do it? I can't take time for golf. But I do take Nujol. And Nujol takes care of me."

Nujol is just a natural substance containing no drugs or medicine. Nujol was perfected by the Nujol Laboratories of the Standard Oil Company (New Jersey). It keeps the body functioning as nature meant it to, even under abnormal sedentary conditions. It not only prevents the excess of body poisons (we all have them) from forming, but aids in their removal.

Follow this advice and take Nujol regularly. You'll be amazed to find how much more energetic and efficient you will feel—and be. Take it steadily for three months and watch your improvement. It can't do you any harm, certainly, and might do you a lot of good.

Be sure you get the genuine.

ENGLAND'S RAILROADS TO HAVE 3RD CLASS SLEEPERS

London—A bill compelling railroad companies to provide "third class" sleeping accommodation on every long distance train at night will probably pass the House of Commons this session.

It provides that every train on which first-class sleeping accommodation is provided shall have at least 20 per cent of third-class compartments "fitted with lying-down accommodation" for not more than four persons in a compartment.

The Bill fixes the charge to be made to each person at five shillings, in addition to the ordinary fare.

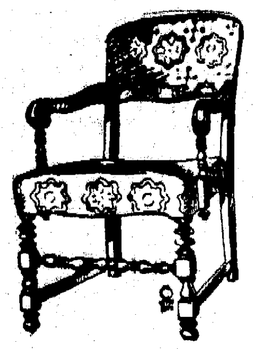
YOU'LL LIKE TRADING AT SCHAFFNER'S



An Explanation—

For the benefit of such families as may be thinking about trading in some of their used furniture as part payment on new purchases, but wonder "if there isn't an extra charge or something" we wish to say, this:

—Our "trade-in" or Exchange plan is strictly a SERVICE proposition on our part. There is NO difference — not one cent — in the price of new furniture selected when you trade in. It is a simple matter to convince yourself of this — all you have to do is to ask prices on new things you intend to buy BEFORE you mention that you wish to trade in, as part payment, some of your present furniture.

Because we have the facilities for doing so, we save you all of the trouble of trying to get rid of your no-longer-wanted furniture, at a satisfactory price. You do not have to worry about advertising to sell it; you do not have to have undesirable people overrunning your home; you do not have to worry about getting your money, about teaming it away, etc. It is strictly a Schaffner Service.

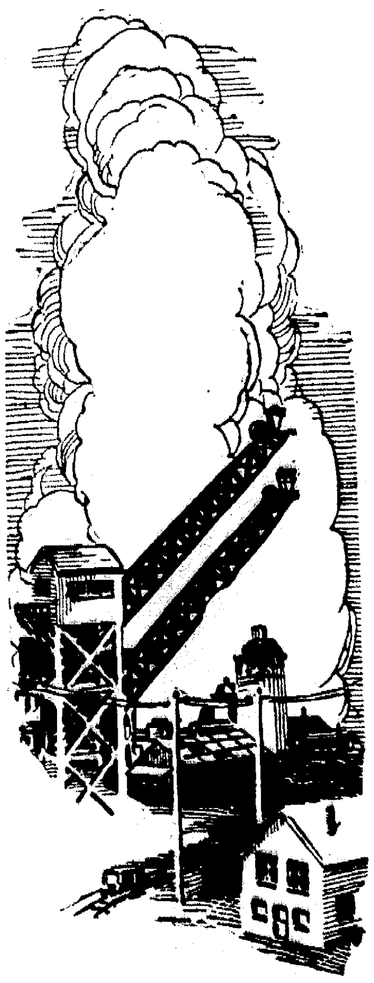
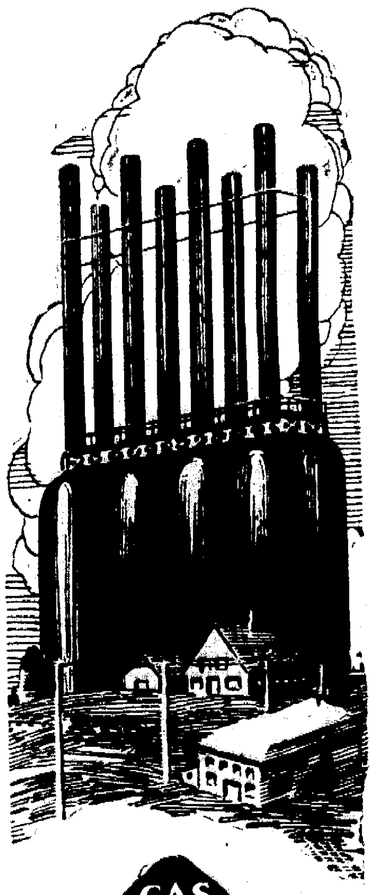
Let's Settle This Gas Rate Now And For Years!

Nothing was ever achieved by inaction. The City of Marion and your Gas Company have both paid a heavy penalty in lost development for delay in the gas rate case.

The Public Utilities Commission in the Kenton rate case authorized a charge of 88 cents for the first 400 cubic feet or less or at the rate of 22 cents per hundred cubic feet. Your Gas Company asks only $1.00 for the first 500 cubic feet or at the rate of 20 cents per hundred cubic feet.

The Commission allowed in the Kenton gas rate case a block rate of 74 cents per thousand cubic feet for the next 2600 cubic feet; 70 cents per thousand for the next 7000 cubic feet and 53 cents for all over 10,000 cubic feet. Your Gas Company asks only 60 cents per thousand for all over 500 cubic feet.





GAS IS worth more

Your Gas Company asks only what the necessities of its business require. It seeks only such return for its service as will justify it in continuing that service and improving it. And for nearly four years it has waited for you to decide.

If this can be called arbitrary,—surely the Gas Company has not been arbitrary. If this can be called unfair,—is it the Gas Company that is unfair?

Will you help get immediate action to settle this matter now and for years?

TURNER GIVES TALK BEFORE KIWANIANS

Tells Cincinnati Club That Contributions Should Bar Candidate from Office

Cincinnati, March 26—Voicing his belief that "the acceptance of substantial campaign contributions should bar a candidate from office," Attorney General Edward C. Turner delivered an address on "State Government," here today before the Kiwanis Club.

"The way to protect the state against the lobby evil is to put into the governor's chair a man who is under no obligation to those who finance lobbyists," continued Turner, who is a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

"The man who accepts campaign contributions is not in a position to drive out the paid lobbyists," continued Turner. "The paid lobbyist is a menace to good government. A governor with the courage of good convictions can drive the paid lobbyist out entirely. The paid lobbyist has no rights whatever. His calling is contrary to a sound policy and he should be banished."

"No better illustration of the baneful influence of campaign contributions is needed than those of Sinclair, Doheny and Insull," said Turer.

"Party managements have legitimate use for a reasonable campaign fund, but even such a fund should be limited," continued Turner. "I hope the time will come when the state of Ohio is big enough to appropriate from the state treasury a reasonable tmount for the campaign expenses of each of the major parties and to say to the party managements: 'This much you may spend and no more. You must not accept any contributions from any person, firm or corporation.'"

ISAAC NEWTON WRONG, WORLD MISLED, CLAIM

London—William H. Parkes, a London janitor, maintains that Sir Isaac Newton was all wrong and that his teachings on the law of gravity have misled the whole of the modern scientific world.

Parkes has devoted ten years of his life to the task of discovering the exact cause of gravitation, a subject upon which Newton said nothing.

"I have at last fathomed the cause," he says in a book "Revelations in Astronomy and Gravitation," just published. "Bodies and particles in space are maintained by the control of attractive motion, instead of by the pulling force of attracive matter, as indicated in the Newthonian theory."

Sir Oliver Lodge and other eminent scientists have expressed interest in Parkes' theory.

A man may frequently think and say he is misunderstood, but the man who thinks he is and doesn't care sufficiently to say anything about it, is the most admirable.

Auditor As Chief Taxing Official of County Supervises All Expenditures

Editor's Note: This is the second of a series of stories outlining and explaining the duties connected with the various city and county offices.

BY HARRY S. ELLIOTT

POLITICALLY ambitious persons who are looking for a sinecure job a way of a public office should not aspire to election as county auditor.

For there is a job which calls for continuous work and close application to duty if the one filling it is at all conscientious and intent upon giving the public efficient service at the lowest possible cost.

Marion County being one of the most progressive counties in the state, which means plenty of business for all public officials, it follows that the auditor's office here is one of exceptional importance.

[illegible] one thing, almost every year. That is [illegible] to worry about, for it [illegible] one subject on which the public is prone to complain and which is and always will be a source of controversy, it is taxes.

Find Way to Auditor

All kicks and protests find their way invariably to the auditor's office, which, as a consequence, becomes a clearing house for grievances, real and imaginary, of the taxpayers. Tact and patience, the two qualities necessary for keeping a person sweet and on an even keel when under fire, are therefore among the attributes necessary for successful administration of the auditor's office.

Along with handling tax problems, the auditor is the chief accountant of the county. He has full charge of the public's accounting system and complete supervision over all receipts and expenditures.

He is directly responsible for every dollar which passes in and out of the county treasury. The law provides that in the event any money is expended illegally, goes to persons not entitled to it, or if public funds by any chance at all get into the wrong channels, the head of the accounting department and his bondsmen can be liable in the final analysis.

The fact that county expenditure this year will total approximately $500,000 indicates that the auditor's responsibility is by no means a trifling matter.

$2,000,000 Collection

That amount represents county expenditures alone. In addition the auditor's office must make an accurate accounting of all taxes collected for every purpose. The general property tax collection in Marion County now amounts to more than $2,000,000 annually.

At the close of each semi-annual collection, the tax money must be distributed to the numerous subdivisions and funds for which levies are made, and these number up in the hundreds.

This task of compiling tax settlement sheets is a decidedly complicated and particular proceeding. When the auditor's distribution record is completed it must come at least reasonably [illegible] of tax [illegible] by the county treasurer.

Work Capably Done

[illegible] is the work done in the Marion County auditor's office, in cooperation with the treasurer's department, that the settlement almost invariably comes within a few dollars of a perfect balance. Much of the credit for this goes to Miss Edith Ebling [illegible] of the auditor's deputies.

Miss Ebling has been recognized by officials at the state auditor's office, through its bureau of examiners, as one of the most capable tax settlement accountants in Ohio. For approximately 10 years this important work has been almost entirely under her direction in Marion County.

Important Post

The auditor's office has always ranked as one of the most important since the beginning of county government in Ohio. In recent years its importance has been increased through legislative enactments adding to its powers and functions.

One of the most recent laws of that kind gives the auditor complete supervision over the finances of every subdivision within the county. This includes municipalities, townships and school districts.

This new system was adopted by the state legislature in the belief that centralized control would establish much greater efficiency in the handling of public funds.

Under this plan, all budgets and appropriations of the various sub-divisions must be officially approved by the auditor before becoming effective. And not a dollar can be expended until the auditor's certificate of approval is on file.

Corrects Trouble

Before this system was established serious difficulties had developed in public financing throughout Ohio as the result of numerous cities, school districts and other subdivisions spending more than they received.

Tremendous treasury deficits accrued in many places as a consequence of this ruinous policy. When a halt was called finally by the legislature passing a law requiring all government departments to live within their incomes, the city of Marion was in the hole to the extent of several hundred thousand dollars. The situation here was duplicated or eclipsed in many other communities.

There will be no chance of such deficits, or any deficits at all, developing in the future under the present plan which places the whole financial procedure under the county auditor's supervision. That is, if the auditor does his duty, and Earl F. Thomas, the Marion County auditor, has indicated that he intends to see that the limits are not overstepped.

Presents Estimate

At the beginning of each year the auditor gives each sub-division an estimate of the amount of revenue to be available and instructs the officials in charge to make their appropriations accordingly.

The appropriations are then reported back to the auditor and he issues a certificate of approval if the amounts are inside the estimated revenue. No money can be expended until that certificate is issued.

Every branch and phase of the public tax system is under the auditor's control and supervision. His duties start with the fixing of property values to expenditure of the funds raised from taxation.

Directs Valuation

As the county's tax appraiser, he directs the fixing of valuations of both real and personal property, which now total more than $90,000,000 in Marion County.

In addition there is the dog tax, inheritance tax, cigaret tax, and automobile tax, all of which must be accounted for in his office, and he is also the county's official sealer of weights and measures.

Enumeration of these duties, together with others which may have been overlooked in this review, seem to furnish proof that the auditor's office is not what could be consistently termed a "soft snap."

The general tax records, all made up in this office, list 11,000 personal tax accounts and 21,000 separate parcels of real estate.

The tax duplicate of Marion County has increased approximately $30,000,000 in the last 10 years.

Elected for Four Years

The auditor is elected for a four-year term and in Marion County receives an annual salary of $3,135. The salary is based on population and an increase is regarded as a certainty here following the next census.

Earl F. Thomas, the present auditor, is serving his first term, which started March 14, 1927.

His office force consists of Miss Ebling and Oscar Gast, deputist, Clifford Swisher, clerk and deputy sealer of weights an measures, Harry Smith, Miss Irene Bender and Mrs. Mary Eloise Furnis, clerks.

EXCLUSIVE CUSTODY OF CHILDREN SOUGHT

Mrs. Virna F. Laucher Files Motion in Marion County Common Pleas Court

Virna F. Laucher, plaintiff in litigation against her husband, Edward F. Laucher, which has been pending in Common Pleas Court and the Court of Appeals for about two years, filed a motion this morning asking for exclusive custody of their two minor children.

In the original court order, she was awarded custody of the children during that part of the year while school is in session and Laucher was to have them during the vacation months. Right of visitation was granted both husband and wife.

In her motion, filed today through the law firm of Mouser, Young & Mouser, Mrs. Laucher asks that the order be modified to give her the children throughout the entire year with the understanding that her husband would have the right to visit them at certain times.

The children are now living with the mother at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. U. G. Lawrence, in this city. Mrs. Laucher bases her request for modification of the original order on the contention that the children have become attached to their new home and are assured complete contentment and the best of care there. She also states that there are irreconcilable differences between her and Laucher.

Mrs. Laucher was denied a divorce in Court of Common Pleas and that ruling was recently affirmed by the Court of Appeals.

Wants Divorce Again

Two tritls at married life with her husband have been unsuccessful, according to allegations made by Ruth E. High in her secoad suit for divorce against Irvin M. High.

They were married first on Oct. 5, 1914 later divorced and then re-married on May 12, 1919, the petition relates. She accuses her husband of gross neglect and failure to provide.

They have one child, a daughter born in 1915. Through her attorneys, L. E. Myers, Mrs. High asks for a divorce, custody of the child, and alimony.

Seeks Attachment

Milo H. Poorman, through his attorney, W. N. Harder, brought suit in Court of Common Pleas today against A. Stanley Herr, for attachment of chattel property which he says belongs to him and which is wrongfully retained by the defendant. The property includes a welding outfit and automobile accessories.

Poorman also seeks judgment for $75 for damage to the property alleged to have resulted from use and lack of proper care.

Granted Divorce

Minnie M. Redd, was granted a divorce from Benjamin F. Redd, today, following hearing of her suit by Judge Scofield. The decree, granted on grounds of gross negiect, also awarded Mrs. Redd custody of the children and her husband's interests in the real estate as alimony.

Michael Davia, 60, of Columbus, pleaded guilty to a charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated when arraigned before Probate Judge McNeal this morning and paid a fine of $50 and costs.

Davia was arrested at Waldo, late Saturday afternoon, by Sheriff James A. Deal and Deputy Sheriff Vane Ireland after his car went into the ditch a short distance below the village. He was at the Groll garage in Waldo, where his machine was taken for repairs, when the officers arrived.

Davia has had unusual luck in escaping uninjured in automobile wrecks in Marion County, even though he has been unable to get off so fortunately in a financial way, local authorities state.

He was unhurt in Saturday's accident. He also emerged with only a few scratches about a year ago when his car turned over while he was being pursued by Deputy Sheriff Vane Ireland. He was arrested at that time and fined on a charge of reckless driving.

On both occasions, he stated, he was enroute to Upper Sandusky to place flowers on the grave of his wife, who is buried there. Flowers were found in his car following the wreck Saturday.

Davia was warned by Judge McNeal against violating traffic rules in Marion County again. He informed the judge that he intends to sell his automobile and travel on foot in the future. He was driving a Cadillac touring car.

time, the nearest telephone being about a mile away.

Marshal Sharrock and Deputy Sheriff George W. Deal answered the call but were unable to trail the bandits. According to information obtained by the officers, the youths had apparently gone a short distance toward Caledonia and then back-tracked toward the east.

The Nufer filling station was the scene of its second robbery, Friday, when two young men drove away without paying for a supply of gasoline which Nufer had placed in their tank. They were captured in Galion about an hour later by Marshal Sharrock after a 12-mile chase.

These two youths, registered as Lester Lloyd, 17, and Homer Hickman, 21, of near Clarksburg, W. Va., are now prisoners at the county jail, awaiting arrival of authorities from Clarksburg, where they are said to be wanted for an automobile theft. They have admitted that they were traveling in a stolen car, local authorities say.

The fourth of the series of theft operations which have kept authorities busy in the Caledonia district in the last few days occurred at the village school Wednesday night, the same night that the Nufer filling station was held up.

Entrance to the schoolhouse was effected by prying open the front door. Although the intruders were apparently in search of money left in the building, desks being ransacked and books and papers scattered promiscuously about the premises, they obtained no loot, Marshal Sharrock states. They overlooked $60 which had been placed in the desk of Superintendent Shoemaker.

Daily Proverb—"Better deserve honor and not have it, than have it and not deserve it."

Twenty planes are being prepared for flights from Europe to the United States this year. Looks like a mighty busy summer ahead for our navy.

And now the charge is made that the films are being used to boom Hoover. Herb's opponents seem simply possessed to bring about his nomination.

Thirty carloads of Italian ammunition, alleged to have been enroute to Hungary, were seized in Jugo-Slavia last week. The way Europe is working for disarmament is as plain as the nose on your face.

Rin Tin Tin is reported to have slept while the home of his mistress was ransacked by a burglar. That artistic temperament stuff again. How could a star be expected to enact the part of a common watch dog?

The city of Tulsa has barred the wearing of suspenders by firemen on the ground that they are "small-town, inconvenient and cumbersome." And thus the inevitable march of civic progress goes on!

The estate of the late Amy Lowell was appraised in New York City last week at $843,655 gross and $780,355 net. An estate like that can not be taken as other than a serious reflection upon her poetic genius.

The marital ties of Lowell and Edna Mae Dunn, who began their wedded life a few years ago with an Adam and Eve honeymoon out in the wilds of Washington, have been severed by a decree of divorce, which is the usual outcome of nut marriages.

Real British Propaganda.

We can not say that we are altogether happy over the publication of an article by P. W. Wilson, a well-known British newspaper man, in the April number of one of our high-class magazines.

Having invited Mayor William Hale Thompson, of Chicago, to present his case in support of his contention that British propaganda is being spread systematically and constantly throughout the United States looking to the overthrowing of our government and making liberty-loving Americans subjects of King George the magazine, in conformity with its policy of giving both sides of every question, asked Mr. Wilson to reply to the Windy City mayor.

Mr. Wilson has lived in America for some time and is thoroughly in touch with conditions over here. Had he been content to review the situation from his point of view and let it go at that, all would have been well. But he was not. He went further and set out what he imagines would be some of the results if the alleged propaganda were real and proved successful in bringing about the situation against which Mayor Thompson warns, and that's where he throws a scare into us. In one place he says:

"The senate would be transformed into a house of lords and Mr. Borah, as the Earl of Idaho, would appear annually in scarlet and ermine. Chief Justice Taft would have to wear a wig and there is hardly a doubt that, on Mr. Henry Ford, as on Thomas Hardy, there would be conferred the Order of Merit. Indeed, the mayor of Chicago himself would become a lord mayor. He would wear knee breeches, gut-steel buckles to his shoes, a jeweled sword, a cocked hat, a fur mantle, and a gold chain. Also, he would have to resign himself to the indignity of a title. Loaded with enameled fetters, he would be entertained at Buckingham palace as the Right Hon. Sir William H. Thompson, Bart., M. P., Knight Commander of the Order of the British Empire."

No matter what may have been the situation previous to the publication of Mr. Wilson's article, we recognize in it propaganda of the most vicious kind. Such propaganda as that of which Mayor Thompson has complained has been the exalting of Britain, Britons and things British at the expense of America, Americans and things American, but he has never alleged more than that. But now comes this British newspaper man and tries to lure a lot of our distinguished citizens away from their allegiance with an intimation of what amounts to nothing less than a proffered bribe.

As is pretty generally realized, the members of our upper house of congress have some pretty queer ideas about themselves as it is. There is no occasion for putting any more fool ideas into their heads. And look at that artful reference to the "Earl of Idaho." Consider, too, the cunning suggestion of a lord mayor of Chicago, wearing "knee breeches, gut-steel buckles to his shoes, a jeweled sword, a cocked hat, a fur mantle, and a gold chain," to say nothing of the hinted reception in Buckingham palace and the long string of titles and fetters following his name!

No foreigner has any business coming over to this land of the brave and the free and taking advantage of our hospitality by uttering propaganda like that. It's an outrage, nothing more or less.

That man Wilson should be deported.

Retirement of Lindbergh.

Sunday's papers told us that Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh plans to retire at once to private life; that he will keep on flying, but that he will no more appear as the central figure at big civic gatherings, public receptions or in any other way or manner which will make possible a continuation of the hero business, which, as has very generally been surmised, was repugnant to him from the first.

An aviator friend of the colonel has told how the Lone Eagle has been jostled, and pulled, and pushed, and dragged about ever since he landed last May at Le Bourget; how he has endured what he has as long as he has in the hope of advancing the cause of aviation and how greatly he has suffered as a result of the refusal of the public to permit him to enjoy a little well-deserved and much-needed privacy. Thus far, the colonel has placed the cause of aviation above consideration of self, but henceforth he proposes to give more consideration to self. Hence there are to be no more good-will flights, no more whoop-her-up-boys receptions and reviews by Colonel Lindbergh.

No doubt the public meant well; no doubt its intentions were good, but its attentions have made life for Colonel Lindbergh something remindful of the locality which has been described as paved with good intention.

For Colonel Lindbergh's sake, we are glad that he has arrived at the decision at which it is announced he has reached. It is to be regretted that he did not make it sooner. The impositions practiced upon him have been so many and so great that they could not have been other than trying to his nerves; that they have been, is made manifest by recent reports of his resentment of the almost constant infringing upon his privacy.

Unquestionably, Colonel Lindbergh's popularity i the greatest ever attained by man. He has been given—and deservedly, too—more hero worship than any human being in all the ages. But the manner in which it has been manifested is a sad reflection on the manners of the American people. It is easy to forgive the French for their demonstration at the time of his landing in the outskirts of Paris, and immediately thereafter, that of the Belgians in Brussels and that of the British at Croydon field. The Washington reception may be overlooked. All of these were so close upon the heels of his epochal flight, which time has demonstrated to have been far less the result of luck, than of skill, courage, an almost uncanny sense of direction and splendid preparation, but there is no excuse for the repeated refusal of his own people—his fellow-countrymen—to accede to his oft-spoken requests to be let alone.

We are told that the colonel will keep on flying. Possibly he couldn't be happy and contented otherwise. But if he has abandoned the "hero business" and the "good-will" flying for all time, the abandonment must mean that he will not again attempt long and hazardous non-stop flights. The fact that he is soon to turn over "The Spirit of St. Louis" to the Smithsonian institution and use a new plane capable of carrying three or four people goes to strengthen this assumption, which every one of his well-wishers will hope time will prove well-founded

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh is an asset which the country can not afford to lose. All of us should rejoice that the chances of such loss are to be diminished.

There has been a sixty per cent. increase in major crimes in Chicago in the last three years. At that rate of increase, it's an open question whether there will be anybody left in the Windy City to throw that proposed big centennial exposition, five years hence.

The consulting engineer of the General Electric company told a New York gathering that there is always an area in the shape of a cone having its tip at the top of a tall building equipped with lightning rods in which there is little likelihood of lightning striking. The drawback about the thing is that one can not tell when a freak bolt of lightning is going to get busy.

The legislative assembly of the province of Quebec has enacted a law to prevent children under sixteen, even though accompanied by their parents or guardians, from attending the movies. It isn't stated whether the measure was passed for protection of the youngsters or to show up the hypocrisy of those whose sole reason for patronizing the films has been that the children might enjoy them.

Vagrant Verse.

NOW I TOO REMEMBER.

And now I too remember far, strange things:
Here with the tendrils of a joy I touch
The vines that have fed laughter through the years.
Now am I one with all who bear a load,
With those who blindly beat the breast and cry,
"Let there be no more waking on tomorrow!"
Now am I one with all who drink from founts
Of eyeless misery and untongued despair;
With those unblessed who darkly strive and seek Rivers of water where no waters are.

Now on the arrow of a golden light
I pierce to where the winging glories are,
And with new eyes look on old caves of grief,
And from new strings of sound I mark the discords old.
Now I behold how near to light they lie—
The streets of grief, the old, old beds of pain;
How with the shaft of sky-breasting desire
These are light-drenched and touched with cosmic fire,
Dissolved in dew or burned within an urn
Of living flame; and now I glimpse how near
The parched valleys to the mountains are.

And now I see how from black aconite
Of grief there springs the Fire Blossom bright;
And how the tired eyes of bitter men
Find balm and surcease...even I now behold
The old worn chalice eager lips have pressed
Returned, filled full, a living cup of flame.
And even the wounds upon the naked breasts
Of pilgrims gone upon an unresting quest
Covered as with the mantle of the gods
And bathed in light. Out of their twisted griefs
Are fashioned wings. Mark how each little stone
Bears now its song...how down the singing grass
Upsprings new music where their footsteps pass!

THIS MIGHT BE VERY EMBARRASSING.

A Beaming Face.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

This is the last of a series of six articles on the dangerous fads and practices which threaten the happiness and physical welfare of our women folk. I hope they have been read and pondered by all concerned. I pray they may be accepted in the spirit they have been written.

To me the human body is something more precious than the most priceless of gorgeous vases or other handiwork of a great artist. The Supreme Artist planned and perfected the human body. When cared for as it should be, nothing can be more beautiful or more appealing.

Pride, that terrible master of men's souls, causeth many a person to suffer pain and to endure agonizing experiences. For what? To have some part of the body attacked with knife and saw, in order that an offending feature may be remodelled.

Starvation diet, abnormal exercises, cruel practices are resorted to for the purpose of overcoming natural tendencies. No sacrifice is too great to make for the sake of slenderness and the "boyish form."

The terrible fate of that Chicago girl should be a warning to every discontented person. Women should consider very soberly the dangers involved in operations for "improving beauty."

My appeal to the women of North America is that they devote themselves to acquiring and preserving health. There is no doubt that the clear skin, the sparkling eyes and elastic muscles of well groomed and animated women mean more, far more, than perfection of individual features.

It is the ensemble that counts. It is the combination, the union of all the features, the general impression—this is what really matters.

I am confident there is a painful lack of knowledge regarding foods, food combinations, the simplest rules of hygiene. More than this, there is an almost sinful disinclination to do the things necessary to have glowing health.

One of the greatest reasons for teaching personal hygiene to children is because habits formed in early life will be practiced forever. When the right way of living is a fixed practice, then there is no trouble about having good health. Health is actually a habit, under such conditions.

It is the duty of each of us to learn how to live, how to eat, what to eat, what not to eat. We should know how much water to drink, how many hours to sleep and how much exercise to take.

Knowing these things we should apply them religiously. Then we will have glorious health. With such health will be the beaming countenance and sparkling eyes that mean far more than absolute perfection of form and feature.

Go to your doctor, not to make an appointment for a beauty operation, but for the purpose of finding out if all your organs are functioning properly. Make sure you are in prime condition and find out what you should do to stay so.

The most magnetic and appealing and winsome woman is the one with flaming health. She will win everything she desires.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

H. Z. Q.—What can be done for pain in the shoulder-blade, which when it reaches the elbow, causes the muscles to pain?

A.—Very likely due to neuritis. Application of heat should give increased comfort until the source of the trouble has been determined. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.—Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Dr. Copeland will answer for readers of this paper questions on medicinal, hygienic and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. Where the subject of a letter is such that it can not be published in this column, Dr. Copeland will, when the question is a proper one, write you personally if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is enclosed. Address all inquiries to Dr. Royal S. Copeland, in care of this office.

A Congo Woman's Headdress.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

The pockets of the small boy are proverbial. They contain everything under the sun, from worms for fishing, to rusty nails, from string for a kite to pennies, from candy and chewing gum to dog biscuit. Everything he lays his hands on goes into those bottomless pits. But, although we can easily understand and sympathize with his rather unsanitary habit of storing everything in his pocket, we might not understand so readily the custom of the women of the Congo. For they store everything in their coiffure just as the small lad stores everything in his pockets.

It has been called the "compendium coiffure," for obvious reasons. The Congo belles arrange their long kinky hair in rolls and curls, and stick in their toilet articles. Here are the contents of the hair of a typical Congo beauty: scissors, manicure implements, mirrors, daggers, henna, all sorts of crude surgical instruments, such as tweezers for extracting thorns and so on. In this way she has at her finger-tips any of her beauty aids she desires. And this is, when you think it over, no stranger than the custom of our western women, who carry their beauty aids in their vanity bags.—Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

There are no national borders for the mind. There are no boundaries for the personality. Ludwig, great biographer, says that when his book on Napoleon is translated into French the French won't like it. He says Germans have a more profound admiration for Napoleon than Frenchmen have. Carlyle, the Great Scotchman, is his teacher, Ludwig says. His "Life of Christ" will be ready in April. He predicts many will not like it. Ludwig has an international mind. The world needs more of them.

* * *

Speaking of Ludwig, this able German thinker's opinion of women is important. In a recent interview he differs with a writer who said that with very few exceptions women have never done anything important. He believes in the greatness and importance of many women. Most significant of all, he says there are many, many "great women whom the world will never know." Every man knows that Ludwig speaks the truth. Every man knows there are, very often in his own home, "great women whom the world will never know."

* * *

There are some minds which are deliberately devoted to poor uses. There are crooked minds and minds put constantly to improper tasks. And then there are minds which are not deeply vicious, which are merely small. They are the minds that get their daily exercise by repeating gossip, juggling petty scandal, casting insinuations. Such minds are rarely in possession of facts. They are just small and they rattle. They roll around loosely, like peanuts in a box.

* * *

Are you familiar with the man who has the habit of telling his business two or three times before he will stop and give you a chance to make your answer? He is a time-waster and a nuisance. He will state his case, clearly enough. Then he expands it and adds to it needlessly, and then tells it all over again from the beginning. It's a bad habit. It can be broken by definite attention. Some salesmen who have that habit lose business because they don't know when the customer is sold, and they don't know when to stop.

Editorial Opinion.

THE DISARMER DISARMED.

Following the lead of Great Britain and the United States, twelve other nations have definitely rejected the Litvinov complete disarmament proposal, and it may be considered entirely defunct. The thrust, of course, which punctured this colorful Muscovite balloon was the masterful Socratic speech of Lord Cushendun, who very deftly took off the pretty coloring of the thing and revealed the symbols of treachery beneath.

Lord Cushendun performed a considerable service for the world and for Europe in particular when he stripped the Russian proposal down to its bare hypocrisy. It is not probable that the nations would have thought of accepting the startling plan, but the British statesman has shown once more that, while Russia may come to the league dressed in the fine linens of peace and renunciation and brotherly love and assuming a higher morality and humanity, there always are packs of Soviet tracts in the pockets and a machine gun just around the corner.

For seven years or so Russia reviled the League of Nations, and the honeyed words now being used by soviet representatives are, therefore, doubly suspect. Cushendun touched the heart of the matter when he implied that Russia's interest in complete disarmament might not be unconnected with the soviet's holy desire to establish the "revolution" in all capitalist countries. In fact, even while Litvinov was parading soviet altruism about the league corridors the official organ of his government published in Moscow a statement blandly indicating that Russia was simply tricking the capitalist governments and hoped, under the guise of peace, to gain greater freedom for international plotting.

There may conceivably come a time when complete disarmament will be practicable. One of the requirements of the possible approach of that time is a complete change of policy in Russia.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Tycho Brahe.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

The Amateur Astronomers' association has on exhibition at the American Museum of Natural History in New York a silver celestial globe that was made by Tycho Brahe, the great Danish astronomer, 400 years ago. Simply as a masterpiece of silverwork this globe is highly interesting. It is covered with engraved figures of the constellations, from which Dr. Clyde Fisher says he has been unable to find that any important star group is missing. The globe is nearly a foot in diameter, and very beautiful in the details of its workmanship and ensemble. The Astronomers' association is hopeful that some wealthy patron will enable it to become the owner of this historic, artistic and scientific curiosity, which has been lent to it by Baron Ralamb, of Sweden, so that it may remain permanently in America, now the home of the greatest astronomical instruments in the world.

Tycho Brahe was the greatest maker and inventor of such instruments in the middle ages. Moreover, he used his instruments so well, although he had no telescope—he died nine years before Galileo's invention—that his accurate observations of the stars and planets enabled Kepler to discover the laws of planetary motion—the basis of modern astronomy—and these observations remain even today of essential use to astronomers.

The story of Tycho's life is one of the most interesting personal romances connected with astronomy. He was of an ancient noble family, the Brahes, which afterward spread into Sweden. When he was only fourteen years old an eclipse of the sun occurred that fascinated him because, as he said: "It was something divine that men could know the motions of the stars so accurately that they could long before foretell their places and relative positions."

Accordingly, he took up the study of astronomy, putting himself into communication with the acknowledged leaders in that science, but compelled to carry on his studies secretly, because his family wanted him to devote himself to something that would maintain and elevate the family honor, never dreaming that through Tycho's devotion to the stars he would put their name so high on the bead-roll of fame that the world would never forget it.

Tycho learned the constellations by the aid of a small celestial globe, "not bigger than his fist," which he had to keep hidden and use only when his tutor was asleep. The memory of this may have led him to produce the exquisite silver globe now at the American museum, as well as the five-foot celestial globe that he constructed of wood and covered with layers of parchment. This last was burned in 1728, 127 years after Tycho's death, in the conflagration that destroyed the "Round Tower," the university observatory at Copenhagen.

Tycho's name is attached to the great new star in the constellation Cassiopeia, which burst out to the amazement and even terror of Europe in 1572, and remained visible for some fifteen months. He observed this star so carefully that its position in the sky is known with almost complete certainty, so that it could be recognized if it should ever blaze out again. It is this star, called Tycho's star, that some have imagined might have been the "Star of Bethlehem" that appeared to the "Magi" at the birth of Christ.

There is another celestial memorial of Tycho which is conspicuously visible. It is the brilliant "crater-ring" on the moon known by his name. He did not discover it, but it was named for him by later astronomers. Anybody can see it even with the naked eye near the southern border of the full moon, where it glows like a polished silver button surrounded by mysterious bright rays, spreading from it in all directions over the moon.

On the island of Hveen, between Copenhagen and Elsinore, Tycho built his celebrated observatory, "Uraniborg"—City of Heaven—one of the wonders for travellers, who were not many, in his day. Now it is only a scattered ruin. —Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, March 26 — Diary of a modern Pepys: Up and talked to Francis Albertanti and we discussed old days when I read copy on the Evening Mail, the most depressing of my newspaper experiences. Nor can I pass the site where the building stood without a shudder.

So to a restaurant and few there, yet the waitresses were standing and holding their trays and one told me that was a strict rule, which struck me as silly. And I determined to write a letter to the management, which was equally silly.

In the evening to a musical play of no importance, but sat behind the trap drummer, and his antics amused me more than the performance, and we engaged in talk and he told of coming from a place called Nip's Neck. Then to eat spaghetti and so to bed.

A New Yorker who invites many out-of-towners to his various week-end parties always adds this rare bit of thoughtfulness to his invitations: "Bring your shirt studs."

* * *

She stepped from a limousine arrayed in evening splendor. Then suddenly her expression was one of amazement. She seemed to shrink as a slowly deflating balloon hobbling across the sidewalk like an ancient flat-footed waiter. Both heels of her evening slippers had crumpled up.

* * *

Music publishers say more than 10,000 persons in New York work at obscure jobs while trying to write a popular song, an operetta or music for a musical comedy. Next to writing, composing music attracts the most followers, yet it is perhaps the most difficult of all fields in which to achieve success. During the last years only two newcomers have won anything like conspicuous success.

There are bootleggers who have reduced chances of arrest to a minimum. They are known as "contacts" and merely take orders and relay them to supply stations with which they are in no wise connected, save as numbers. That is their sole part in the transaction. They are paid twenty per cent. of the sale price, always in cash, by the head man.

* * *

A high-speed New Yorker is interesting and a bit amusing. I dropped in on one in his Lotel apartment before he started for his office. The masseur had just left. A barber was shaving him. Two stenographers were taking dictation while a harried secretary was trying to get Chicago on the telephone. A valet was rubbing off his shoes and two callers waited in the ante-room for an audience. It was there about five minutes and went away feeling as important as a sick gnat at an elephant round-up.

* * *

My trouble has been that if anybody drops in just to say "Hello" they can remain as long as they like and even tell stories with long beards, without my showing the acute annoyance I feel. But the way big men can waltz you out of the office and make you like it is simply superb.

* * *

The trained secretary is a big help to important men in giving the visitors a polite bum's rush. He can pounce in, suggesting it is time for this conference and that engagement and do almost everything but put on your hat. He has the advantage, too, of not caring whether you like it or not.

* * *

Of course, some men exaggerate the New York importance. And the best answer to them was given by Ring Lardner. Having a fixed engagement with one he arrived to find a card on the door: "Will be back in ten minutes," underneath which Lardner queried "What for?" and went on his way.—Copyright, 1928, by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

Twenty Years Ago.

This day was Thursday.

The Star told of a motion, filed the day before, to remove Fred W. Warner as receiver of the South Side Building and Supply company for the reason that Warner was one of the attorneys in the suit bringing about the receivership.

Captain E. O. Richardson, of D company, made his appointments of non-commissioned officers as follows: Solomon Fling, Harry Creekbaum, Walter Bolander, Wesley Fulton, George Carter and Arthur Abbot, sergeants; Clarence Davis, Elijah Davis, Miles Anderson, George T. Geran, William Collins and Robert Swisher, corporals; LeRoy Miller and Ralph Secrest, trumpeters; Charles Bender, artificer, and Marley Edsell and Earl Baker, cooks.

Marion suffered a lot of minor damage from a very severe windstorm which swept the city. Signs were torn from their fastenings, wires were blown down and a few windows were broken by flying articles.

Miss Mary Bedway and Mr. Joseph Geha were married the afternoon before, so the Star stated, by Rev. Father Joseph Denning.

The long-continued search for Jacob Garver, mysteriously missing from Richland county, was still in progress.

Miss Alice Weiss, the phenomenal girl pitcher, was touring the country with the Cleveland All Stars.

The Marion Gun club was organized with Herman Feidner at its head as chairman.

J. Wilbur Jacoby was elected exalted ruler of the local lodge of Elks.

Mrs. Harry Dix was ill at her home on Jefferson street.

The Star told of the birth of a son to Mrs Joseph Carpenter, of Prospect, the day before.

Sons were born to Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Moore, of Blaine avenue, and to Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln White, of Patterson street, and daughters to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Reed, of east Mark street, and to Mr and Mrs. William Creasap, of Girard avenue.

Thunderstorm Accompanies Shower As Another Week of Spring Weather Opens

The season's first thunderstorm accompanied by heavy rainfall marked the opening of another week of spring weather for Marion last night.

If predictions of the weather bureau can be taken at face value, old man winter is scheduled to make another appearance with his time worn show tonight before taking the final count.

In addition to more thundersterms and rain the varied weather program for tonight includes a decided drop in temperature and strong winds.

As the Marion Lion prepares to do his final act, south and southwest winds are dut to shift to the northwest, becoming strong early tonight. The strength of the wind will be spent by Tuesday morning, the weatherman predicts.

Quick Change

Just as serious thoughts of discarding heavies were entering minds, the weather station books a different program than has been ordered.

Last night's storm set in early and continued for several hours Although accompanied by heavy lightning no damage was reported.

Balmy spring weather has existed in this section since last Thursday when mercury started its steady climb, reaching the high peak of 68 degrees Saturday. Over the week-end the temperature continued to stick around that mark with 68 degrees being reported as high yesterday.

But a slight decrease in temperature was noted last night following the rain. A low of 51 degrees was reported.

Marion enjoyed much warmer weather yesterday than one year ago when a high of 52 and a low of 38 degrees was reported.

Lima Team Confers Work On Anniversary Class of Daughters of Isabella

More Than 100 Candidates Are Initiated at Meeting Held in Elks' Hall; Attend Banquet at Hotel Harding Ballroom

Members of the Lima Degree team conducted the work when the first anniversary class of Our Lady of Victory Circle, No. 388, Daughters of Isabella, numbering 112 candidates, received the initiatory work yesterday afternoon in the Elks' Hall. The work was followed by a banquet at Hotel Harding where covers were placed for more than 200 members and guests. Visitors were in attendance from Lima, Mansfield and Galion. Members of Our Lady of Victory Circle will meet tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the Knights of Columbus Hall.

L. A. Axe, district deputy, presided as toastmaster for the banquet and talks were given by Thomas J. Duffy, Columbus, supreme director of the Knights of Columbus, Rev. John T. Hanahan, assistant pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church, and Clarence Silva, grand knight of Marion Council, Knights of Columbus. Pep songs were contributed throughout the program hour by members of the Lima Circle and the Girls' Glee Club of the Marion Circle under the direction of Miss Rita Snyder. Miss Juanita Cantieny, of Lima, sang beautifully, "Ave Marie," accompanied by Miss Bernadetta Blanchard, of Lima, and Miss Genevieve Farruggio, accompanied at the piano by Miss Mary Von Kaenal, entertained with a pleasing violin number. William McAndrew was heard in a vocal number, "Dawn," and responded to an encore with "Roses of Picardy." He was accompanied at the piano by Miss Von Kaenal.

Guests Welcomed

The invocation was spoken by Rev. Father Hanahan and guests and members of the class were welcomed by Mrs. Mary Rinehart, regent of the local chapter. Mrs. Catherine Zwilling responded to the address.

"No matter how nobly the heroes of other ages struggled and fought, no matter how nobly they builded, you and I of this age must meet the problems of today with the same conscientious devotion to duty that characterized the founders of this nation, if we are to continue to enjoy, preserve and hand down to our children the blessings they have so nobly and bravely handed down to us," declared Mr. Duffy in his address on organization.

Cites Patriotism

"No greater demonstration of the efforts of organization is known than in the organization known in history as the 'Army of Ragged Continentals.' In numbers, this organization was insignificant but its members had a purpose that knit their hearts together, they aspired to breathe the air of freedoom. These heroes made possible the establishment of an institution that gives you and I an opportunity that had not existed before but they did not change human nature. They did not prevent it from becoming a country of conflicting elements. We have ignorance and enlightenment, strength and weakness, greed and generosity, justice and oppression, purity and corruption, fanaticism and reason, riches and poverty, liberty and tyranny.

"Religion and patriotism have always been the greatest influences in the lives of people and nations. It was this power that inspired the ancient Grecians warriors who did the things that made Greece the mistress of the ancient world. Religion and patriotism inspired the men who did the wonderful things that builded Roman power and glory and when these great principles began to decline Rome's power and glory faded away."

Grand Knight Speaks

The following of worthy and uplifting ideals and unity of purpose were cited by Mr. Silva as sure roads leading to the success of any organization. Mr. Silva spoke on "Fraternalism," and gave an interesting talk on the work of the organization with which he is affiliated.

The part played by womankind in inspiring and carrying out the ideals of the church was the theme of Rev. Father Hanahan's talk. "We are mistaken if we believe that in our humble state in life our example goes unnoticed," he stated. "The church has accomplished a great deal through the idealism of womankind and looks to women for its many vocations," he said.

'The Understanding Heart'

A Story of the California Forests
BY PETER B. KYNE

(Copyright, 1926, Peter B. Kyne by arrangement with King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

The Action So Far

Garland, a young ranger, is transferred to the San Dimas National Forest Reserve. Chief Ranger Casey welcomes him and tells him to beware of the charms of Monica Dale, who acts as lookout on Bogus Peak. Garland is notified by telephone the next morning that Robert Lee Mason, an escaped convict, is being hunted with bloodhounds. Monica is a friend of Mason's so Casey does not phone her. Mason appears at Monica's gate in a state of collapse. She hides him and feeds him, and riding out shoots the two bloodhounds who are trailing him. She pretends to the sheriff she killed the dogs because she thought they were chasing deer. He and his men ride up to the lookout station and Monica treats them to moonshine. After they leave the thought of having killed the dogs brings tears to her eyes. The new ranger appears and introduces himself as Anthony Garland. He talks to her freely, not knowing Mason is inside.

Now Go on with the Story

CHAPTER 6

GARLAND quoted softly, with fine declamatory effect:

"Who hath desired the Sea?—the immense and contemptuous surges?
The shudder, the stumble, the swerve, ere the star-stabbing bowsprit emerges.
The orderly cloud of the Trades and the ridged, roaring sapphire thereunder—
Unheralded cliff-haunting flaws and the head-sail's low, volleying thunder?
His Sea in no wonder the same—his Sea and the same through each wonder
His Sea that his being fulfills?
So and no otherwise—so and no otherwise hillmen desire their Hills."

"Who wrote that?" Monica demanded crisply. Her slumbrous brown eyes appraised him with alert yet lazy interest.

"Rudyard Kipling."

Silly of me. I should have known it. Well, hillmen may desire their hills, but somebody else can have the space I occupy on Bogus Lookout. And somebody shall have it, the minute I can escape."

"Who goes to the hills goes to his mother," the ranger quoted. "What's wrong with Bogus Lookout? The view is unparelleled, your cabin is neat and stanch, you have an abundance of good spring water, there's a nice little meadow down yonder for your horse and cow, wood is handy, abundant and without cost to you. With a radio or a good phonograph to entertain me and with good books, I could live a long and happy life on Bogus."

"I have all of those things, Mr Garland. Nevertheless when a girl 21 years old catches herself talking to herself a dozen times a day, isn't it high time to leave Bogus? I'm the loneliest girl in the world," she added, with sudden passionate vehemence.

He had sufficient tact to make no reply to this. A less delicate nature would have inspired him to remind her gaily that hereafter he would endeavor to alleviate her loneliness. She had left herself open to just such a banal masculine remark, and she had realized it the moment the words left her tongue; wherefore his silence not only relieved here of the necessity for defensive tactics, but afforded her a vague comfort. He nodded sagely. He understood. Monica liked him for that.

"What was that you recited about the surges?" she demanded.

"'The immense and contemptuous surges,'" he replied soberly.

"I wonder if life is like that—immense and contempuous?" she murmured, more to herself than to him.

"Indeed it is," he told her sagely. "Most wordlings would welcome the peace and security of Bogus Lookout."

"Peace and security are always to be desired," Monica admitted, "but I've had so much of both I'm not appreciative. My soul beats against these everlastingly hills like a wild bird in a cage. You see," she added parenthetically, "I've never been out of the hills. The world is a great mystery to me, and I long to explore it."

"But surely you have been away to school?" The ranger's face was incredulous.

"Graduate of the little old red schoolhouse over at Siskiyou Center."

"But your grammar—your choice of words—your freedom from the slovenly mountain accent—"

"One learns grammar and how to choose words even in Siskiyou Center," Monica reminded him quite seriously. "We had the same teacher for 10 years, and she was very efficient—a university graduate. There used to be a rumor that she had been disappointed in love and moved up into this country to hide herself; but my own opinion is that she was prim and unimaginative and thrifty and didn't care where she lived and labored, provided she could save a competence for her spinsterhood. I suppose there are such curious human beings as feminine hillbillies."

"Undoubtedly," he replied, and with sly deviltry.

"I mean by instinct, not by force of circumstance," Monica flared back at him. "I'm a female hillbilly, but I haven't the soul of one, and I'm in rebellion against my state."

"I think you must have a very superior mother, Miss Dale."

"I don't remember her. My father was a placer miner. He could not have been any other kind of a miner because he was uneducated and knew nothing of geology or mineralogy."

"Well, then, you've been a reader of good books."

"I have, and some of them haven't been such easy reading, either, although I stuck it out and finished them all. I buy $10 worth of second-hand books every month from a bookstore in Sacramento. The proprietor selects for me the books he thinks I ought to have. He sends them to me by parcel-post. I told him I wanted to know something, to educate myself, and I put the task up to him by mail. Saw his advertisement in the Sacramento Bee."

"You're an extraordinary girl—quite extraordinary."

"'Needs must when the devil drives,'" she quoted. "If I didn't read, my heart would break with the loneliness. And yet I resent that fog because it interferes with my appointed task, which is to sweep the San Dimas with my telescope for 20 miles north, west and south, and report any forest fires I may discover."

"I suppose your father works his placer."

"Not any more. He died two years ago."

"And you live all alone on Bogus? Am I, five miles distant, your nearest neighbor?"

She nodded somberly. "That's why I want to go down into the world and be immense and contemptuous, too," she explained.

He appraised her—more minutely than he had at first, and with mounting interest. She was about five feet, five inches tall, and weighed perhaps 130 pounds—all curves, at any rate, and no angles. She had an erect carriage; her shoulders were wide and her bosom full; her waist flat and graceful, gently curving hips leading to slim ankles and a beautiful foot shod with Indian moccasins combined to give her a figure almost Junoesque when she stood erect.

Her hands were, like her feet, small and delicate, and they were tanned very brown; her face, too, was tanned, the flesh of her bare brown forearms firm and healthly-looking, and the skin on her full, rather powerful neck, which seemed almost a pedestal for her head, was of that rich, fine, creamy texture inseparable from women with very dark auburn hair and eyes.

The ranger decided that she was not a beautiful girl in the sense that most people definite beauty. Her head was almost too large for a girl, but then (Garland decided) highly intelligent women require large heads to hold their brains, otherwise they wouldn't be intelligent.

Her hair, parted plainly in the middle and tied in a psyche knot at the nape of her adorable neck, would, of course, always be the envy of other women. Very dark auburn it was, with golden lights in it. Her brow was medium high but wide, and her large, alert, sparkling eyes were set far apart.

Her eyebrows were very thick and golden brown. Later in life she would probably have them plucked to a thin line and spoil their natural beauty, Garland reflected.

The dark brown eyelashes were long and curving and very thick, too; her nose was thin and almost high, the nose of a thinker and a thoroughbred; her mouth a trifle large, but saved from a charge of spoiling that patrician countenance by the occasional flash of strong, even, well kept white teeth and the curve of lips that, even in repose, gave to Monica's face an expression of ineffable sweetness that always transcends mere physical beauty. Lip-stick, rouge and powder-puff had never vioscends mere physical beauty. Lip-stick, lated the rich, creamy cheeks with their faint, healthy glow.

A consciousness of being in the presence of an unusual woman enveloped Anthony Garland. He was not a common man nor a dull man, and Monica's obvious intelligence, her quiet dignity, her poise, so palpably natural, the impelling force of a unique personality stimulated his interest in her mightily. She titillated his alert sensitiveness to the undemonstratively beautiful.

Alluring yet childishly passionless, she impressed him as one distinctly virginal; he admired her courage and self-reliance in dwelling alone on Bogus; he thrilled to her wistful yearning to improve her mind and her economic condition.

But principally she aroused in him that quality which is man's most priceless heritage, if women only knew it—an infinite capacity for pity and an eagerness for the display of chivalry—both characteristic of men in whom other masculine qualities may be all too unlovely.

Of course she must be the loneliest girl in the world. Only 21! She would never be lovelier than she was now, in her maidenly naturalness and simplicity, and arrayed in that cheap blue chambray wash dress. A verse from Gray's Elegy came to his mind:

Full many a gem of purest ray serene,
The dark; unfathomed caves of ocean bear,
And many a flower is born to blush unseen,
And waste its sweetness on the desert air.

His long, inquiring, and wholly impersonal appraisal of her became just a little embarrassing, and to distract his attention she essayed an apology for entertaining him in her front yard. "Not that my cabin isn't clean and orderly," she was assuring him with that blunt directness he found so charming, "but——"

Love's Embers

A Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

MADGE IS AWARE OF IDENTITY

I MUST not let Eleanor Lincoln give her confidence to me until she had time to give a second and calmer thought to her resolve to tell me the secret which was so troubling her. This was the realization which came to me as I heard her voice tremulously saying that she could trust me, and that she must tell somebody. But I conquered a distinct temptation to take her instantly at her word, as I loosened her twisting hands from mine and said gently but firmly:

"Indeed, you shall tell me anything you wish, but not just now. You are too much excited. Lie still and think things over a bit while I go to your aunt Anna's room and see how she is."

She looked up at me with a mutinous mouth and determined eyes.

"I shall not change my mind," she said, "but do go to see my poor Anna. She isn't my aunt, though. I might as well begin by telling you that. She's——"

But I was already at the door, and she did not finish the sentence. I hurried along the corridor to the sick-room of the woman who was supposed to be Eleanor Lincoln's "aunt Anna." The door was wide open in order to admit all the air possible, and as I neared it I heard a low muttering. I stood motionless at the door for several seconds before I could distinguish the sounds into the syllables of a name continually repeated, "Lena, Lena, Lena."

The nurse turned and, seeing me, came toward me swiftly and silently. The husband of the sick woman seated at the bedside did not look up, but kept shaking his head in a sort of mournful negative accompaniment to the call from the sick woman.

"Do you know these people?" the nurse asked. "Have you any idea who 'Lena' is?"

"I only know them as neighbors since they came here in the Spring," I replied in equally low tones. "But I will ask Miss Lincoln about it."

The old man sprang suddenly to his feet and started toward us.

"You ask my—my—niece nodings," he said, fiercely. "She not know. My vife she shust talk foolishness. Dere is no 'Lena.'"

The nurse wheeled and sent a withering look over him.

"If you speak above a whisper in this room again," she said in icy tones that yet could not have been heard by the sick woman, "I shall tell the doctor that you cannot stay here."

He glared at her for an instant, then without a word went back to his place by his wife's bedside. The nurse walked with me into the hall, closing the door after her.

"If Miss Lincoln knows who 'Lena' is, find out if it is possible to get her here," she said. "I thought at first the woman meant her niece, but the uncle tells me her name is Eleanor."

"I'll ask her about it," I said, "but I'd like to wait a little while. She's not in very good shape."

"There's no particular hurry," the nurse replied. "It would do no good to bring 'Lena' or anyone else while she is in this delirium. But if, when she comes back to consciousness, she still longs for 'Lena' it will be highly desirable to grant her wish."

"I'll ask her about it during the next hour and let you know," I promised, and left her. For almost half an hour I talked with Mrs. Tiver downstairs, and then went back to Eleanor Lincoln, to find her waiting for me with flushed face and eyes which betrayed the terror which was consuming her.

"I thought you weren't coming back," she said, "and I mustn't wait any longer to tell you. You must listen. To begin with, my name is not Eleanor Lincoln. I've been deceiving you all. I really am the——"

She stopped hesitantly, fearfully, and searched my face. I laid my hand upon her reassuringly.

"Perhaps it would help," I said quietly, "if I told you that I already know you are the Princess Olina of Transvania."

When a Man Goes in for Washing Dishes

"THE best housekeeper I ever had," said a young married woman the other day, "was a man.

"It was in a little village down in Maine where we lived for two years. Maids were scarce and I prevailed upon Joe to help me in the house. Joe had been in the Navy, and later had had his own fishing schooner.

"I have never known a woman who was so scrupulously neat as Joe. The way he washed dishes, for instance, was a lesson in efficiency.

"First he scraped and piled them all according to size. He used Lux for the suds in the dishpan, because, he said, Lux made better suds in half the time of anything else, also because Lux was easier on his hands.

"Sailors, he said, use Lux because their hands are often badly chapped and broken and Lux is soothing.

"Now I myself follow Joe's plan in doing dishes, and I always use Lux. The difference it has made in the looks of my hands is really amazing. Lux keeps them so white and smooth, that I've passed on the hint to my friends."

Because Lux contains none of the harmful alkali found in many household soaps, whether flakes, chips or cakes, it never irritates even the most sensitive skin, never dries the delicate oils of the hands.

And the big package of Lux washes 6 weeks' dishes.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

YESTERDAY was Sunday. My grandfather said to everybody at the table: "The weather man says it is going to be bright and fair today, and I am going to take Grand and go fishing." My mother looked at my father and my father looked at my mother. They don't like me to go fishing on Sunday, but my grandfather pays board, so they want to do what he wants. So I told the bunch to go chase themselves. I would rather go with them, but I didn't think my ant would wash my neck to go fishing, but she did.

We got on a car and went as far as the car would go, with Jubilee squinched up on the back platform. Then we went up some hills through the woods and acrosst a wide hollow and up and down another woodsy hill to the bank of a river. I asted my grandfather if it was the same river I go swimming in and he said it was. I did not know that rivers were so long.

My grandfather was just putting a worm on his hook, and I had his hat, which he sticks his hooks in, to get a hook to put on my line when a big spatter hit him right in the middle of his bald head. I looked up to see who had spit on him, and I got a spatter in the eye. And then the rain came down by the bucket full and we got under a tree and stayed there till it got wet through.

My grandfather said the sun would soon break through, and he threw his hook in the river and turned around to speak to me and a whale got hold of his hook and he stepped back and one foot went over the edge of the bank. I made a jump and grabbed the other leg and got on it; and there he was with one leg down the bank and me setting on the other and him fighting the fish a nd saying things about the weather man, and Jubilee batting his head off. Then the pole broke in two in the middle, and my grandfather shoved at the dirt and grass till he got up the bank. Then I looked for Jubilee and he was out in the river with the end of the pole in his mouth and the fish jerking his head under every minute. I run down the bank and got in a boat that got hold of the end of the pole and we got the fish in the boat, and he had said a lot of things my mother would rather I had missed, but I wouldn't.

Tony was Monday. I spent most of it telling the bunch about our fishing trip. Next Sunday will be April fool day. It ought to have been yesterday.

Meditations of a Married Woman

BY HELEN ROWLAND

A MAN'S love is weakening when he stops demanding your kisses and casually accepts them; but it is not quite dead, until he merely permits them.

* * *

No man has lost his beautiful faith in life as long as he can gaze at his reflection under a few wisps of hair and through a cloud of shaving lather, and still fondly believe that some woman loves him for his sex appeal.

* * *

A woman will go out of her way to make a man "suffer"; but a man can make a woman suffer just by going his OWN sweet way.

* * *

The average man's idea of carrying on an animated conversation with his wife is to sit with that pained, far-away look in his eyes, and wait patiently until she "gets through."

* * *

A woman can forgive an ex-husband or showing "bad judgment" in his second choice; but she can never forgive any man for showing "bad TASTE" in his selection of her successor.

It's a "date" when a man meets a girl with his shoppy-shoppy-ping; an "engagement" when he makes it with the woman he love—and an "appointment," when it happens to be with the dentist—or his wife.

Eight Teams Enter Semi-Finals of Tournament Tuesday

CLASS A CONTESTS WILL FEATURE CARD ON Y. M. C. A. COURTS

Finals of Marion County Amateur Tourney Will Be Held Friday

BY KARL R. M'ELROY
Sports Editor

Eight teams surviving the first round of the Marion County amateur basketball tournament will go into action Tuesday night when the semi-final games will be played at the Y. M. C. A.

The cream of county teams, these eight aggregations will fight for the right to enter the final event Friday night. The ranks will be thinned down to four teams after the semi-final contests.

Class B teams will participate in the first two games. At 7 o'clock Waldo and First Reformed of Marion meet and an hour later the Harding Hi-Y will play the Wildcats.

Class A games promise to be the principal attraction of the tourney. Three Marion teams will hold the limelight and it is a toss up just what teams will survive.

At 9 o'clock Butler Aces will tackle the strong Martel Lion Tamers. In their first game the Aces defeated Harding Hi-Y in a close contest while Martel won on a forfeit. The Aces have a strong reputation in Marion, having played together all season. Martel has just as impressive a record among county teams.

The battle royal of the evening will be the contest between Markert and Lewis and Marion Business College. Both of these teams are exceptionally strong. The Markert and Lewis team is composed of members of the Harding High School team and will probably go into the game backed to win.

When going right the Business College lads have a team that will make any aggregation struggle to win. The collegians have been going good all season and are certain to make a good showing Tuesday night.

DERBY RUNNERS ARE IN INDIAN TERRITORY

English Racer Sets Eight Mile Average Over Lava Bed Route

Grants, N. Mex., March 26—C. C. Pyle's bunion derbyists jogged through the Laguna Indian Country toward their twenty-third control at old Laguna Pueblo, 34 miles from Grants today.

Cubero, a bit of old Spain, with its quaint streets and dingy adobe homes, at the foot of Mt. Taylor, 11,368 feet high and covered with millions of feet of pine timber, was midway on the route and here the caravan lunch cars refreshed the runners and walkers.

Yesterday's trek from Thoreau to Grants, 30.5 miles, was one of the most strategetic of the 772 miles from Los Angeles, as 12 miles of the jaunt were through detours in the Sage strewn desert. The route had been mapped out with the designating arrows to guide the throng and as a result little difficulty was experienced by the field.

Peter Gavuzzi, Southampton, England, jogged at a grilling pace yesterday when he averaged almost eight miles an hour over the lava bed route.

Here are the leaders together with their elapsed times for the 72.17 miles.

1—Arne Suominen, Detroit, Mich., 131:04:25.

2—Andrew Payne, Claremore, Okla., 134:19:17.

3—Peter Gavuzzi, Southampton, Eng., 134:39:46.

4—ohn Cronick, Saskatoon, Sask., 137:08:15.

5—Voight Hofsteter, Manistee, Mich., 145:10:35.

NEW YORK CELTICS CAPTURE PRO TITLE

New York, March 26—The New York Celtics are the professional basketball champions of the world. They clinched the title by defeating Ft. Wayne, western champions, here last night by a score of 27 to 26 in the fourth game of the series. The Hoosiers won only one of the games.

Trailing by a score of 16 to 4 at the end of the first half, the Hoosiers staged two great rallies in the second period but just failed to catch up with the Shamrocks.

Davey Banks was the individual star, scoring 11 points for the Celts with five field goals and a foul toss.

CENTRAL CHRISTIANS DROP CONTEST IN TOURNEY

Church basketball in Marion is at an end following the defeat of the Central Christians, champions of the Marion County Sunday School Basketball League, in the tournament at Findlay Saturday.

The local aggregation was defeated by Findlay, 30 to 29. The Christians played without Geissler at the forward berth. By brilliant playing he won the team the county title.

OPEN GOLF SEASON

Chicago, March 26—Golfers to the estimated number of 10,000 were massaging sore muscles today as a result of seizing upon Chicago's first balmy Sunday to open the local season. Seven courses controlled by the city were crowded from daylight to dark. Private courses also reported large attendance. The mercury reached a maximum of 70 degrees.

That red-headed girls are bow-legged, while brunettes are, as a rule, knock-kneed, is a recent discovery of scientists.

SETS RECORD

Prospect Athlete Puts Shot Nearly 46 Feet for New Mark

PROSPECT, March 26—Earl (Tiny) Johnson, shot putter of the Prospect High School, set a new record in the National open High School meet, held in the Cleveland Public Auditorium, last Saturday. He put the shot 45 feet, 9 3-4 inches, which was a foot better than the former record held by Fried of Lakewood. Johnson's out-door record is 49 feet, one inch, made at Delaware Central District Meet last year.

ROOKIES MAY MAKE PHILLY FANS HAPPY

Four Members of Teams Have Good Chance To Land Berths

Winter Haven, Fla., March 26—Four Phillie rookies were farmed out to the Pittsfield, Mass., team of the Eastern League, last season. With Charlie Bates, of the Athletics who also was there, they nearly won the Eastern League pennant for the club.

All four Phils are now in camp working hard here, for every one has a chance to make the team. Three of them Ed Baecht, August Walsh and Ed Taber, are pitchers, and any pitcher who can produce has a job with the team any time.

The fourth, Dennie Southern, is an outfielder, and there is a spot with the Phils that can be filled by an outfielder who can make the grade.

Southern is a speed demon, a beautiful fielder and looks like a hitter. When he first joined the Phils he parked several homers in the left-field bleachers. If he has improved as he should have with minor league experience, it is going to be hard to keep him off the team.

Of the pitchers, just what they will do will determine their fates. Walsh led the Eastern League last season, and Patsy O'Rourke, the Phils' scout, is predicting big things for him.

Baecht first started with the Phils like a boy wonder. That was two years ago. Up at Pittsfield he went fine until he broke an ankle and was later spiked.

Taber has a keen mind, which is his best asset, but he has something on the ball too.

POOR EYESIGHT ALL ROT, JACK DEMPSEY TROUBLED WITH EARS

Former Champion Just Can't Hear Offers Made by Tex Rickard

By DAVIS J. WALSH

New York March 26—Hard upon the heels of another of our John's retirement statements, made over the week-end, the latest Dempsey story hit Broadway today and this one is authority for the declaration that it isn't bad eyesight, after all, that is driving the great man into self-imposed exile. He can see all right, they say, but has had a lot of trouble with his ears on several occasions during recent months. It seems that he just couldn't hear Rickard at all when the promoter is declared to have offered him a $250,000 guarantee for a third meeting with Tunney.

The comparative modesty of this figure is understood to have been made necessary by the garden directorate, which was somewhat irked by Mr. Rickard's generositw with other people's money in connection with the Chicago purse. George is supposed to be committed to an attempt to get out from under on the next fight for not more than $800,000, which, of course, is all very uninteresting to our John.

He always was a little hard of hearing when being talked to down in the decimals and the story is that he told Rickard he would have to speak louder, longer and loftier. They are said to have split on this point, Rickard declaring that he had a lot of good heavyweights who wanted action and John declaring that George was to go right ahead and give it to them.

Announcement Followed

The announcement of Dempsey's retirement is said to have followed within a matter of weeks.

Just when, if ever, he can be expected to repudiate this announcement may depend on the break he yet might be able to get from percentage thing, the story goes. That the collapse of Rickard's heavyweight plans him reason to believe that this break may come soon is indicated by the message he vouchsafed an eastern man recently. The latter had informed Dempsey that he, the easterner, had been forced, through lack of specific information, to "stall" certain parties on the retirement matter.

"Stall them a little longer," is alleged to have been the gist of Dempsey's reply.

What the good man really wants, I am informed, is a guarantee almost equal to that which will accrue to Tunney. The latter is understond to hold a contract with Rickard, calling for a flat guarantee of $525,000, plus a percentage of the receipts. Dempsey, they say, wants a guarantee of at least $450,000 and doesn't care where it comes from.

That last crack is said to mean that he would be only moderately irritated if some of it came as a result of a "kick back" from brother Tunney himself; that is, it would be almost all right with Dempsey if they had to make up a portion of his guarantee from a portion of brother Tunney's original purse.

Considering the money he could get with Dempsey and the money he won't get with Joe Windmill and the other heavyweights who are so busy fumbling on their own 5-yard line, brother Tunney might do worse, at that.

BRITAIN, AMERICA TO PLAY BIGGEST ROLES

British Decide To Extend Agenda To Include Naval Reduction

Geneva, March 26—Great Britain's decisive move to extend the agenda of the preparatory disarmament commission to include naval reduction indicated today that Britain and America probably will play the dominant roles in the next meeting of the commission. These two powers are vitally interested in the naval issue.

Practically all the delegates to the conference which ended Saturday have departed to make detailed reports to their respective governments. It was regarded as a significant fact, however, that Rear Admiral Hillary P. Jones of the United States Navy is remaining here. This gave rise to the report that the next day or two may be taken up with unofficial conversations upon the plan for naval limitation introduced on Saturday by Lord Cushendun, chairman of the British delegation.

After the various governments have digested the reports of their delegates diplomatic exchanges will begin to formulate a definite program for the next meeting of the commission. These may last several months, owing to the intricacies involved.

The fate of the third set of Russian proposals for universal disarmament is doubtful. Maxim Litvinoff, who is a skilled diplomat, is determined to keep some kind of proposals before the commission, if possible. Belief was expressed by the Soviet delegates that the powers would not throw out the latest Soviet program without a chance to discuss it at the next meeting. However, such a possibility exists.

How to Get Rid Of Piles Quickly

Stop that Terrible Itching Tonight

A whole lot of people in America have got speedy relief and in a short time banished piles with Peterson's Ointment after expensive treatments had failed.

One Michigan sufferer writes: "Used Peterson's Ointment and after first application had a good night's sleep, the first in a long time."

Another from Pennsylvania says: "I like your Ointment for piles, it helped me more than any medicine I ever used."

And still another from South Carolina writes: "I have got more relief from sample of Peterson's Ointment you sent me than from $5.00 worth of suppositories."

Pretty nearly every druggist in America will recommend Peterson's Ointment—often a 35 cent box will end piles.—Adv.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years and calomel's old time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative mixed with olive oil.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c—Adv.

Tobin, Saturday to furnish transportation for she and her sister, Mrs. Bertha Denyer, 23, to that city.

The three arrived in this city late Friday afternoon from Lima, with no money. They appealed to the Salvation Army and were given beds, the second night they had slept in beds since leaving Baldwin, on March 11, they said.

After a consultation the women refused the offer saying they would rather continue to "thumb" their way.

Bankers Here Interested In Report Showing Thousands Violating Freak Statute

Federal Law Enacted in 1909 Prohibits Writing and Cashing of Checks for Less Than $1; Found in Washington by Newspaper Reporter

Bankers in Marion are interested in a report received here last week disclosing that thousands of bank depositors throughout the country are daily violating a freak law which in some unknown and mysterious manner found its way into the federal statute books.

Known as statute No. 178 of the federal criminal code, it prohibits the writing and cashing of checks for less than $1. The last issue of the Banking Law Journal, received here Saturday, revealed this amazing "masterpiece" of legislative statesmanship.

There is no likelihood of banks here or in any other communities throughout the country requiring depositors to comply with the law, it was stated.

The exact purpose of the statute and the circumstances connected with its enactment seem to be an absolute mystery. It was passed in the 1909 session of congress and became a law on March 4 of that year, according to the report published in the Banking Law Journal.

Found by Reporter

Discovery of the existence of the statute was made recently by a New York City newspaper. Before publishing the story, the paper had reporters interview a number of prominent New York citizens to ascertain whether they were aware of the $1 check limits rule.

A United States District attorney, five leading New York bankers and others of equal prominence declared that no law of the kind had ever been passed and laughed at the idea as being ridiculous.

When furnished with proof they were astounded, the New York paper reported.

100 In Week Here

Although no accurate estimate on the number of checks cashed in Marion for less than $1 is available, bankers indicated that the total will run above 100 in the course of a week.

Depositors, it was said, will be permitted to continue paying their bills in this way should they so desire.

Repeal of the law will probably be sought by national banking officials.

The penalty for violations is designated as "not more than six months in jail or a fine of not more than $500, or both."

SECOND SUICIDE AT MIAMI UNIVERSITY

Death Said To Have Been Caused by Despondency of Love Affair

Oxford, March 26—The second Miami University student suicide of a week was recorded here today with the death of Mack Wisecup, 23, a junior in the teachers' college, and manual training instructor at College Corner High School. His body was discovered late Saturday night by his mother, with whom he lived here. Wisecup's death is said to have been caused by despondency over the failure of his suit for a girl student.

The girl is said to be the "Helen" addressed in a note left by Raymond Tish, Coshocton, who died in a Cincinnati hotel after drinking a poison potion.

Wisecup and the girl are said to have been together Saturday afternoon. They parted early in the evening, students say, when the girl declined to accompany him to a basktball game. The youth's mother, Mrs. Laura Wisecup, discovered his body with a bullet through the heart on the bed of his room when she and a younger daughter returned from the basketball game.

Wisecup was a member of the Delta Upsilon Fraternity.

HOMECOMING RITES

Three Well-Attended Services Held at Fite Memorial

With three well-attended services homecoming day was observed yesterday at Fite Memorial Baptist Church. The largest attendance was at the night service when Rev. Robert Hughes of Bucyrus preached on the subject, "Love."

In the afternoon installation services were conducted for the newly elected church officials and there were short talks by Rev. E. N. Lenz of Ostrander and Reverend Hughes. In the morning Rev. Wiley S. Young, pastor, preached on the subject, "Tithing." Features of the services were the three solos by Probate Judge L. B. McNeal accompanied at the piano by Miss Elma Sage.

OPEN WAR ON RATS

Crew Starts Operations Here To Rid City of Rodents

A war on rats was launched in the city of Marion today.

A crew of experts in rat extermination, headed by W. F. Amann of St. Louis, who states that he had had 19 years of successful experience in this unusual line of work, in charge of the formidable task of making Marion a ratless community.

That it is actually a formidable undertaking is shown by the fact that Amann estimates the city's rat population at 75,000, more than two to every resident.

He bases this figure on statistics compiled through his long and extensive service in warring on rodents in communities through the country.

Never Found A Better Medicine Than New Konjola

Her Rheumatism Left When She Started With This Surprising Remedy.

MRS. FANNIE M. WHITE

"It is wonderful how Konjola benefited me and I never thought any medicine in the world would make such a change in me," said Mrs. Fannie M. White, 641 East Third Ave., Columbus, Ohio.

"I suffered with rheumatism in my arms and shoulders and it kept getting worse until I could hardly stand the pain any longer. My hands were so swollen and my arms were so sore and stiff that I couldn't begin to do my housework. Why, it was all I could do to get up and down the stairs. I can't remember a day the last three months that I didn't suffer and I thought there would be no end to my suffering.

"Since taking Konjola, I do all my own work again and I can use my hands and arms as freely as ever. Every ache and pain is gone and my whole system feels better than it has in five years. I could have never found a better medicine to tone me up as Konjola did."

Konjola is different than any other known remedy in this section. It contains twenty-two juices extracted from natural plants which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, to a more healthy action. The effect of Konjola on the entire system brings amazing relief in cases of suffering that had been going on for years. At the same time many weak and rundown systems have been restored to a new state of health through this compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their experience with this new medical product until now Konjola is the most highly indorsed medicine that is known in this vicinity.

Konjola is strongly recommended here in Marion at Stump & Sams Pharmacy, and is also being sold by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this section.—Adv.

DEAR READERS:

Since Jan. 1st, we have been telling you about ourselves, our different complete departments, how we do business, and how we aim to satisfy you.

We have had several big used car sales, sometimes using a half page of this paper, all to get you into the habit of coming here first, for anything in our line; it saves time shopping around, and if we don't have what you want when you come, we'll get it for you.

We don't believe anybody can serve you any better, and we don't believe anybody can give you better service, especially if you own a Chevrolet or contemplate buying one.

Come in, visit our different departments; tell the first man you meet, you want to be shown, and he will do his duty.

Very truly yours,

New York March 26—The railroad stocks and the steel shares joined with the motor stock today in a new forward price movement which carried a number of the well-known speculative leaders to the highest prices on record. The demand for General Motors in the first hour virtually swept the market off its feet, and pandemonium reigned on the Stock Exchange as the stocks soared another 7 1-2 points to within 2 1-2 points of $200 a share.

That the country had been heard from in this new buying wave for General Motors stock was plainly evident from the huge volume of orders to "buy at the market" coming to Wall Street over the brokers' wires. Promise of a liberal increase in the cash dividend of the company was seen in John J. Raskob's comments on current earnings and dividend policies, announced in interview before sailing for Europe last Saturday.

There were other standards of measurement of the effects of the big speculative wave now sweeping over the country. A seat on the New York Stock Exchange sold today at $375,000 up $25,000 from last week's highest sale, and comparing with a price of about $170,000 for exchange memberships a year ago On the promise of the establishment of a stock trading mark on the New York Produce Exchange, the price of memberships in that institution sold today at $22,500, against $17,500 last week and $1,500 earlier in the year, before the ambitious plans of the exchange become known.

TODAY'S REVUE OF SATURDAY'S MARKET

Chicago, March 26—As wheat prices moved into new high ground Friday, after gaining consistently the early part of the week, an array of bearish news poured in and the market broke sharply. Principal factors in the decline were weakening of the March future, due to shipment in of wheat from outside markets and increasingly favorable crop conditions in the Southwest.

Closing prices Saturday showed gains of only 3-8@5-8c, despite the bullish activity which prevailed all week. The March showed a loss of 1-8c at $1.39 5-8. May finished at $1.39 3-8, July $1.36 1-4 and September $1.33 7-8.

Prices slid off and finished the week 1-4@1c lower, with March at 98 7-8c, May 99 1-8c, July $1.02 and September $1.03. Failure of foreign demand to follow the rise in prices and weakness in the cash market were responsible for the selling.

Oats ruled weak under realizing by locals during the major part of the week, but reinstating of long lines cause firmness near the close. Net losses for the week were 3-4@1 7-8c. The distant futures were the weakest due to heavy planting of oats in abandoned wheat areas.

The rye market was tight and futures rose to new high levels. However, they ran out of line with prices in outside markets and the Northwest liquidated freely. Prices finished ⅝@1c lower for the week.

Bullish enthusiasm reached its height Friday, and prices of the futures were at the top in the early trading, with July reaching a new high for the crop. However, bearish news, relating to the old crop months, and the possibility of moisture for the early sowing of the Winter belt, resulted in heavy liquidation, and prices broke sharply.

DIRECTOR EXPLAINS REASON FOR ACTION

Schlesinger Says Highway Department Lacks Funds for Projecting Road Here

A statement issued Saturday by George F. Schlesinger, state highway director, furnishes a definite explanation of his department's refusal to consider construction of a new state road through the southern part of Marion County this year as petitioned for by landowners and public officials in that locality.

The director announced that no hearings will be held this year on any proposed new state roads because of limitations provided by the new highway code known as the Edwards-Norton law.

Although the code permits the addition of 200 miles of state highway annually, it requires notification of all property owners within one mile of either side of each proposed road, according to a ruling of the attorney general.

The law also carries a provision that "appeal may be taken from the findings establishing such highway or roads to the Court of Common Pleas in the county or counties where the same is situated."

Attorney's Opinion

This, in the opinion of the attorney general, would subject the state to expensive litigation, either in the way of appeals from the decision of the highway director or from injunctions served on the department if it attempts to expend any funds in the improvement of roads designated as state highways.

The state, it was announced, is not prepared for such expense and complications this year.

The new state road proposed in Marion County would start from a point a short distance west of Prospect going east through the village to the Marion-Delaware-rd below Waldo, then south to Norton and east to Ashley. It would provide a connecting link between two other state roads, making a complete route east and west across the state.

ePtition for the road has been on file with the state director for practically a year. Arrangements had been made for a hearing last month and a large delegation of farmers and public officials from Marion County and surrounding territory had planned to attend. The hearing was called off by Schlesinger.

New York, March 26—An autopsy was to be performed by the medical examiner today in an attempt to penetrate the mystery surrounding the death of Gordon Hampson, young concert pianist, who succumbed in St. Luke's Hospital seven days after a battling attack which he refused to discuss. Death was due to embolism following an injury to the jaw, which had been broken, apparently in an assault.

Jack Parrish, close friend of the injured man, visited Hampson and told police today the only reply he obtained to his inquiry about the attack was, "the less said about it the better."

Mrs. William May Wright, noted concert singer and society leader, said today the musician declared he believed he was struck by a burglar. Hampson recently appeared before President Coolidge and Vice President Dawes.
